

calling all caregivers

Are you 18 or older
and the caregiver of a child under 18?

This survey is for you!

The study is called, "Identifying trends in children through a strengths-based identification tool."

We want to know what children have in common by asking questions to caregivers using a questionnaire called the Strengths-Based Identification Tool.

Dr. Elizabeth Cleveland, through Partners for Inclusive Communities and the College of Education and Health Professions at the University of Arkansas, is conducting the study.

If you agree to take this survey, you will be asked a series of questions about you and a child you know. This is a completely anonymous survey. You will not be asked to give any identifiable information.

Some of the questions on the survey are about neurodivergent children and children with neurodevelopmental disorders. If you have questions about your own child while you are taking the survey, you can email Dr. Cleveland at any time at ec056@uark.edu.
